Additional Details

Travel Hazards

- Rain will briefly change to freezing rain and then moderate snow between 2-4 AM.
- Moderate snow expected by 7 AM – roads will be snowy.
- Secondary roads will be snow covered after 7 AM.
- Primary roads that are treated will fare better.
- Some icy spots, especially as temperatures fall.

Recommendation Details

We recommend closing as moderate snow falling during the morning will allow for road conditions to quickly deteriorate, especially secondary roads. Conditions will not improve until later in the afternoon when the snow begins to move out of the area.

Other Information

Northwest winds of 10-15 MPH, with higher gusts at times, will also help to reduce visibility in snowfall. Some of the snow will blow around. Ice will not be a significant factor, but a light glaze is possible on elevated surfaces prior to the snow falling. Snow will stick to icy surfaces quicker.
